

Two Assistant Professors of Technology Management, Tenure Track

Texas A&M University's Department of Educational Administration and Human Resource Development, in the College of Education and Human Development, seeks two tenure track Assistant Professors in the field of Technology Management. The Department of Educational Administration and Human Resource Development, and the College of Education and Human Development are especially interested in qualified candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service.

Qualifications: The successful applicants for each position should have earned a Ph.D. in Technology Management or a related field, have an established research agenda, teaching experience in higher education, and a potential for external funding activity consistent with a tenure earning faculty member at a Research Extensive university.

Responsibilities: We seek to hire exceptional scholars in the area of Technology Management. Thus preference will be given to candidates with preparation in Technology Management, with one or more research agendas underway, as evidenced through refereed publications. These are tenure track professor appointments with responsibilities to teach two courses per semester in the area of Technology Management. Courses include, but are not limited to, TCMG 272 Technology and End-User Support, TCMG 274 Distance Networking for Training and Development, TCMG 303 Unix System Administration Practices, TCMG 316 Database Systems Administration and Application, TCMG 308 Cybersecurity and Digital Ethics, TCMG 412 Contemporary Issues in Technology Management, and TCMG 476 Managing Technical Networks. Each semester there may be 2 course preparations. Preference will be given to individuals with strong Technology Management background and the requisite Cisco Certified Network Associate (CCNA) certifications to lead students in earning CCNA 1 certification.

Appointment: These are nine month appointments. The anticipated start date is September 2018. Salary for each appointment is competitive and commensurate with qualifications.

Applicants should address their qualifications directly in a letter to the Search Committee explaining how their experiences relate to the curriculum needs identified. In addition, the application packet should include a current curriculum vita, three letters of reference and certified academic transcripts. The search committee will begin the review of applications on November 6, 2017. The search will remain open until both positions are filled.
