Clinical Assistant Professor
Human Resource Development

Texas A&M University's Department of Educational Administration and Human Resource Development, in the College of Education and Human Development, seeks a Clinical Assistant Professor of Human Resource Development with emphasis in Technology Management. This individual will assume the duties typically expected of a Clinical Assistant Professor at a Research-Extensive, Tier I university.

Qualifications: Applicants for this position should have earned a doctorate in Human Resource Development, Technology Management, or a related field. ABD applicants will be considered, but all degree requirements must be completed by August 15, 2014. Applicants should have prior teaching experience at the University level in the fields of Educational Technology, Instructional Design, Human Resource Development, Technology Management and related fields. In addition, applicants should have experience with using technology as a medium of instruction.

Responsibilities: Clinical faculty members are essential to accomplishing the departmental vision of serving a new undergraduate student population with focus areas of Human Resource Development or Technology Management. This is a nine-month appointment with responsibilities for teaching four undergraduate courses per semester in the areas of human resource development and/or technology management. Courses to be taught include, but are not limited to, EHRD 473 Introduction to Distance Learning, EHRD 475 Multimedia Development for Training and Instruction, EHRD 477 Project Management in Organizations, EHRD 479 Grants and Contracts. Preference will be given to an individual with a strong technology, educational technology and HRD background. Beyond their roles as outstanding teachers, clinical faculty members are expected to serve on service committees, participate in faculty governance, develop new courses and assist with advising.

Appointment: This is a nine month appointment. The anticipated start date is September 2014. Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications.

Applicants should address their qualifications directly in a letter to the Search Committee and should include a current curriculum vita, three references, and a statement of their teaching philosophy. The search committee will begin the review of applications May 15, 2014. The search will remain open until the position is filled. Letters of application should be addressed to Dr. Homer Tolson, Chair of the Search Committee and sent to: Marie Shelfer, Department of Educational Administration and Human Resource Development, 511 Harrington Tower, 4226 TAMU, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843-4226. (979) 862-4347 (FAX). Completed application and curriculum vita may be digitally signed and sent electronically via PDF to: shelfer@tamu.edu.

Texas A&M University does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, sex, religion, national origin, age, disability, veteran’s status or any other legally protected status of employment.